New Cut-Off Date Imperils Financing for Borough's Low-Cost Housing Program

If rumors now circulating on Wall Street turn out to be true, the fate of the Borough's affordable housing program may be decided this week.

Since the announcement of the $5.7 million low, moderate and middle income housing program in February, Mayor and Council have been gearing their efforts to completing the bond package by September 1. This was the supposed deadline for municipalities to take advantage of current tax law provisions that allow the recoup of arbitrage on specific public purpose bonds.

But now there's talk that the House and Senate Conference Committee on Tax Reform will move to end municipalities' access to profit-making arbitrage this Friday, August 15 — more than two weeks before the anticipated shut-off date.

Mayor Barbara Sigmund said that all local and state agencies and private institutions have been positive and cooperative in advancing the close of the housing bond issue. The five participating banks involved in the six million dollar issue are Princeton Bank, United Jersey Bank, the Trust Company of Princeton, National State Bank, and New Jersey National Bank.

The mayor explained that the credit of neither the Borough nor county taxpayer is pledged against the bond. Instead, she said, the real estate and housing act as security.

Four separate governmental agencies must also act this week if the bonds are to be floated by Friday. The Mercer County Board of Freeholders has to authorize the Mercer County Improvement Authority (MCIA) to float the bonds. The MCIA must formally agree to do so. The state Housing and Mortgage Finance Agen-

Final Funds Are Raised For Bridge with Arches

The Mercer County Freeholders have promised $35,000 toward the extra cost of providing a slight degree of arching in the rebuilt Harrison Street Bridge.

The pledge by the Freeholders is the final amount toward the $150,000 it will cost to provide arches that are four feet deep — two feet deeper than what the state Department of Transportation (DOT) was willing to support. Other contributors include the Township, the Borough and Princeton University, which, with the $35,000 from the Freeholders, comes to $125,000. The state DOT agreed to make up the $25,000 difference, contingent upon the "successful appropriation" of monies from all sources by August 31.

Commercial Land Owners along Bunn Drive Hit Township's Plan to Rezone That Area

The contest between the expectations of commercial property owners vs. the interest of residents in retaining the residential character of the town continued to be played out in two public hearings on the proposed re-zoning of the office research district along Bunn Drive last week.

The arguments made for and against reducing the floor-area-ratio in the entire OR zone and enlarging the more restrictive OR-1 in the hearing before the Planning Board Thursday were similar to those made to Township Committee Monday. Corporation heads and their attorneys cited the "unfairness" of the changes and sought a compromise with township. They objected on procedural grounds to an ordinance amendment sprung with very little notice, not fully appreciating the Township's desire to avoid the situation of 1980, when down-zoning to preserve the environmentally sensitive ridge resulted in a rash of applications and six lawsuits.

On the other side of the issue, the planners, the traffic consultants and those living along the roadways leading to the OR zone cited preserving "the quality of life in Princeton" in support of the amendment.

After its hearing last Thursday, the Planning Board voted 7-1, with one abstention, to recommend the proposed ordinance amendment to Committee. Mary Ellen Marino, a new Borough appointee to the Planning Board, voted against the changes, while John T. O'Neill, a relatively new Township member, abstained. Neither offered an explanation.

Having introduced the ordinance earlier in the month, before receiving the Planning Board's recommendation, Township Committee held a second hearing on the amendment last Monday, intending to vote on the measure that night. But Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer announced at the outset that 20 percent of the affected property owners had filed a formal pro-

Borough Council Hoping New Law Will Streamline Rent Registration

When the Borough rent ordinance expires on August 31, a new ordinance will be ready for September passage. The Borough Council put the finishing touches on an or-inance that it hopes will streamline the rent registration process and increase the efficiency of the rent registration coordinator and Borough public health officers.

Introduced at the Thursday night Borough Council meeting by Rent Registration Board liaison Marvin Reed, the new ordinance is the result of two years of consideration and preparation.

According to Rent Registration Coordinator Linda Feldstein, landlords will register with only the Borough Clerk's Office, eliminating the duplicate registration with her office. This will reduce her paperwork and increase her responsibilities as a public advocate of tenant and landlord rights.

Also streamlined will be the scheduled health inspections. Currently, inspections are triggered by notifications of rent increase, causing some properties to be continually inspected while others go ignored.

With the new ordinance, inspections will be made every two years in conjunction with a required bi-annual re-registration of all units.

Housing Bonds

cy must give its nod to financing mortgages for low and moderate income families, since it is difficult for such families to obtain conventional financing. And Borough Council must approve a loan agreement between the Borough and the MCIA.

A special meeting of Borough Council to act on this agreement is scheduled for noon on Thursday at Borough Hall.

While the mayor expressed confidence that all the agencies involved will provide their stamp of approval, she still feels there is only a slight chance to close the bond by the end of the week. "It has been a superhuman effort with the end-of-month deadline," she said. "It's going to be difficult to have the paperwork updated by the end of the week."

Since its announcement in February, the Borough's affordable housing program has been reduced somewhat in size. Plans originally called for 84 low, moderate and middle income units that would sell for $24,000-$124,000. The prices remain the same, but the number of units has been reduced to 72. If the Borough cannot find land to replace the Quarry Park site, the number will be further reduced to 68. (Quarry Park was to have been the site of 16 housing units, but plans to use the park were abandoned in the face of opposition from some citizens.)

Calling this "the Perils of Pauline week in the life of the Borough," the mayor said that if the current program doesn't work, the Borough will have to go back to ground zero to put together a bond issue under whatever the new terms are. "It will be a heartbreaker, not a stopper," she said.

Rent Registration

Elimination of the rent increase notification prompted considerable debate in the Council.

"Why have a rent registration ordinance without registering rents and rent increases?" asked the Mayor.

Council members were concerned with the additional paperwork and the penalties for non-compliance. If a landlord forgets to notify the Borough of a rent increase under the present ordinance, he could be subject to thousands of dollars in penalties before realizing the error.

After a lengthy discussion, Council agreed to require notification of rent increases by landlords to the Borough but put a cap on the penalty for non-compliance.

Mayor Sigmund voiced the Council's concern that people in Princeton pay high rents and should expect clean and safe housing. Concern over regular health inspections was underlined when part of Shirley Court was recently designated as blighted.

In the past, rentals with more than five units were regularly inspected by the State Department of Consumer Affairs but not by the Borough unless there was a rent increase. Under the new ordinance, all units will be inspected by the Borough every two years, regardless of other inspections.

"It's up to the community government that these inspections be done on a timely basis," commented Peter Johnson, member and former head of the Rent Registration Board. "And these units must be registered."

The Council meeting began over an hour late because a landlord dispute ran into overtime. The hearing involved the Council, the Rent Registration Board and coordinator, and a landlord and several tenants in dispute. According to Linda Feldstein, disputes such as this will be less likely under the new ordinance.

The dispute involved rent increases and violations which resulted in over $3,000 in penalties and a claim of manifest hardship by the landlord. The Council reduced the penalties in an exception to the current ordinance.

After more than two hours in the landlord dispute hearing and more than two hours in a discussion of the new ordinance, Council passed the draft of the proposed new rent registration ordinance, with some changes. The final passage should take place at the September 9 Council meeting.

Bridge Arches

Township Mayor Gail Firestone told fellow Committee members Monday night that she had attended a meeting last Thursday at which the Freeholders informally agreed to appropriate the money. Although no formal action was taken, Mayor Firestone said the Freeholders were aware of the deadline.

The DOT says it will take one calendar year to complete the design, and one "construction season" to build the new bridge. Thus it might be two more years before the Harrison Street bridge is re-opened to traffic.

Should Jugtown Be an Historic District? Community Discussion Scheduled Tuesday

The question of whether Jugtown should be added to the State and National Historic Registers will be discussed at a community meeting scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Borough Hall.

All residents of Jugtown have been informed of the meeting, which will feature a slide show of the neighborhood. But anyone else who is interested is welcome to be there.

This is a prelude to a New Jersey State Review Board hearing scheduled for September 25. If the Board approves, Jugtown will be placed on the State Register and the designation will be forwarded to the National Register for inclusion.

Efforts to place Jugtown on the State and National Registers have been ongoing since 1980, said Wanda Gunning, chairman of the Borough Historic Preservation Review Committee. When a major historic sites survey was done in 1980, three areas were pinpointed for potential inclusion, she said. In addition to Jugtown, these were the Kingston Mill (already added) and an extension of the Princeton Battlefield area.

Mrs. Gunning described Jugtown as an 18th- and early 19th-century crossroads community that was actually a separate village with its own industries, stores, and taverns. It was called Jugtown because it was the site of several pottery manufacturers.

She noted that three of the four corner houses at the Nassau-Harrison intersection are pre-Revolutionary in part.

In addition to providing an imprimatur on the district's historic and architectural merit, historic designation adds another layer or review process if any state or federal monies are to be expended. This might occur, for example, if there was a move to widen Harrison Street to the new Harrison Street bridge.

PCH Plans Win Praise From Planning Board

Princeton Community Housing's new layout for townhouses and apartments, to be built under the Township's affordable housing program, was cordially received by the Planning Board last week.

The plan was presented by architect Robert Geddes, who called the design a collaborative effort among architects in his firm, planning consultant Alan Mallach, and members of the PCH board. Mr. Geddes described the social goals of neighborliness and sense of community that he believes will be achieved by the physical elements of the design.

Planning Board Co-Vice Chair Margen Penick said she thought the plan was "wonderful," but asked why the garden was in back of each townhouse instead of in front, where the plans show a single parking space and a small space for plantings. Mr. Geddes responded that there is a neighborliness to getting in and out of the car which he wished to heighten in a plan that "relies more on the sidewalk and less on the back yard."

Co-Vice Chair Richard Henkel also congratulated PCH on the design, but warned against eliminating any of the landscaping because of lack of financing. Township Mayor Gail Firestone wanted to make sure there was some individuality to the townhouse units and said she liked the idea of front porches to each one. "There will be a vocabulary of porches," Mr. Geddes assured her.

Some Objections. Neighbors objected to the three-story height of the apartments and their placement at the periphery of the development rather than inside where they are less visible. They also asked that the exit on Cherry Valley Road be located more centrally on the property axis rather than at the far side adjacent to an existing driveway, and requested more screening.

They were concerned that the loop road that encircles the development and provides access from both Cherry Valley Road and Route 206 would be used as a cut-through to avoid the traffic light at the 206-Cherry Valley intersection.

Neighbors, as well as Planning Board members, questioned whether adequate recreational space had been allotted for teenagers. Conceptually, the plan calls for "tot lots" at intervals along the network of paths. Two tennis courts and a small community building are planned, but it was suggested that a place to bat a ball might be more appropriate.

Leonard Thomas, the nearest neighbor, picked up on the remark by PCH Vice President Ted Vial that Mr. Geddes was known for his "concern for the human element — putting people above cars." Mr. Thomas wanted to know whether neighborliness was intended just within the community, or with him, as a neighbor. "No one stopped by to get my side of the picture," he remarked.

The architects, consultants and PCH board members promised to consider the suggestions that had been made before bringing detailed drawings back for site plan approval. Planning Board Chairman Hans Sander thanked them for submitting to a second non-binding concept review, which, he said, "we feel is a good process. This is a fairly exciting concept, in need of some fine tuning."

agency conducted a hearing on the developer's request for an exemption to allow it to proceed with construction of Phase II on Hulfish north. Long opposed to allowing any additional sewage to enter the defective collector system until overflowing manholes are shown to be no longer erupting in periods of heavy rainfall, the Environmental Commission has sought at both governing bodies to overturn the SOC recommendation for an exemption on the grounds of financial hardship.

J.B. Smith, SOC chairman, told Committee that the Collins projects planned to "come on line" by the end of 1987 will contribute 19,000 gallons per day to the sewer system, specifically to the Harry's Brook trunkline. That trunkline normally carries 3.56 million gallons per day, and in bad storms as much as 19 million gallons per day.

Mr. Smith said that the Collins contribution of 19,000 gallons per day would add .05 percent under normal conditions and .01 percent in wet weather. "Not a detectable amount," he noted, adding that it would hasten by "10 seconds — who knows?" the occurrence of the overflow.

If the SOC receives the permit re-written by the DEP to allow the two planned overflows that are an integral part of its $12 million sewer rehabilitation plan, construction on replacement of the defective portion of the Harry's Brook trunkline could begin as soon as the required 30-day comment period has elapsed. The SOC had hoped to begin construction in April and to have it completed well before the end of 1987, when the new Collins buildings are scheduled to be ready for occupancy.

But the federal Environmental Protection Agency, which is required to review the issuance of an overflow permit on a project of this size, is also charged with carrying out the provisions of the Clean Water Act and thus is reluctant to approve any overflows. This reluctance is the basis of the delay in obtaining the necessary permit from the state agency, Mr. Smith reports.

However, he says he thinks the DEP is eager to assist the SOC to get its plan approved so construction can begin. "We are in a negotiating mode," he told Committee Monday, after reporting that the SOC had received a letter that afternoon from the DEP "that looks positive. They want us to change a couple of things here and there, that's all," he said. Mayor Gail Firestone said she was convinced the SOC had considered the effect of lifting the ban for Collins would have on the Township, and that there was a commitment to get the Harry's Brook line repaired close to schedule. "The worst case scenario would only be for a few months," she remarked, adding that she would not support a resolution to instigate an appeal to the DEP.

"But the concerns (of the Environmental Commission) are real, and I would hope that Collins would voluntarily consider delay coming on line" if the trunkline replacement is delayed, as had been suggested by Committeeman Toms Royal. Baruch Boxer, a member of the Environmental Commission, expressed disappointment in Committee's decision. Mr. Boxer said that the problem in the Township was "real," and added that the "engineering relief" of the SOC's rehabilitation plan "was only an assumption and not a fact" — an assertion angrily challenged by SOC Chairman Smith.

$18,000 Ring Returned To Jewelry Store Here

A 2.3 carat diamond ring valued at $18,000 has been returned to a Nassau Street jewelry store, which had received no payment for the ring. Police have charged a New York City resident with theft by deception, after she allegedly used fraudulent information in purchasing the ring on May 1.

Lily Spore, 34, of Apt. 1B, 412 E. 55th Street was arrested Thursday by Sgt. William Clark and detectives from New York City's 17th Precinct, after they executed a search warrant for her apartment.

Ms. Spore was later released after being processed and her papers turned over to the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office for possible action by a Mercer County Grand Jury.

According to Lt. Peter J. Hanley, Ms. Spore entered into a credit agreement with the store in which she was to pay off the full $18,000 in 90 days.

When the store never received any payment, it investigated and discovered that Ms. Spore had supplied fraudulent information for her credit approval, including a false address and telephone number.

Lt. Hanley reported that information supplied by the store, which he described as "very good," led Sgt. Clark, with the aid of NYC detectives, to the suspect's 55th Street address. Ms. Spore, he said, had used her right name in signing the credit agreement.

The store, he said, was very happy to get the ring back. He refused to reveal its identity, however.

Pepsi Hotshot Competition Set At Community Park This Tuesday

The Pepsi/NBA Hotshot annual skills competition will be held at Community Park School on Tuesday. Competition will start at 11 a.m. and there will be a "shoot off" next Thursday, August 21, for the boys 9-12 division against the winners of the Day Camp Hotshot Contest.

Open to boys and girls, 9-18, the Pepsi/NBA Hotshot competition tests speed, dribbling, shooting and rebounding abilities. There are three age divisions — 9-12, 13-15, and 16-18 for both boys and girls.

The winner in each of the six categories of the Community Park School round will advance to compete against other area winners for the Princeton Recreation Department championships. One winner from each of the six divisions will then advance to an area playoff to be held in New Jersey. The six area winners will compete during halftime activities of a New Jersey Nets game. The winner will receive an expense-paid trip to the national championships to represent New Jersey in competition against the winners of the 22 other NBA cities.

time between July 17 and last Wednesday, the day it was reported to Township police.

Last week, someone removed a screen from a Snowden Lane home to reach in and open the window and steal a purse containing $60. The purse was found an hour later on the property of a neighbor and turned over to the police.

One of the occupants told police later that he and his wife had heard a noise about 12:30 a.m. while sleeping upstairs, but did not call the police because they thought it was a car traveling along Snowden Lane.

In another theft reported the same day at 8:30 in the morning, someone entered a cottage located behind a house on Snowden Lane and made off with a Brooks Brothers, safari-style rain hat valued at $50. Entry to the cottage was gained through an unlocked front door.

Attempted Entry. Borough police report an attempted entry Thursday night into a Greenview Avenue home.

The owner told police that, after he had heard a noise downstairs at 11 p.m., he investigated and saw someone trying the living and dining room windows on the side of the house. He switched on an exterior light which caused two suspects to flee in the direction of the Princeton Cemetery.

One suspect is described as 5-9, about 135 pounds, with blonde hair and wearing a white T shirt; the second is about 5-5, 125 pounds. Police said the two were frightened off before any entry was gained.

Two Cars Are Stolen; One Is Later Recovered

Two cars were stolen last week, one in the Township and one in the Borough. One was recovered Tuesday in Lawrence Township in poor condition.

A 1979 Honda, owned by a Maryland resident, was stolen this month from the Princeton University lot off Faculty Road. The victim told police

Illjacker Gets 34 Years

Thirty-one-year-old Michael L. Lenz of Monroe Township, who last October hijacked a West Windsor ambulance and held its four crew members hostage, has been sentenced to 34 years in jail.

In imposing the sentence last week, Superior Court Judge A. Jerome Moore ordered that Lenz must serve 15 years before being eligible for parole. Lenz's public defender, J. Stewart Husid had asked the court for leniency because of the defendant's drug addiction but Mercer County Assistant Prosecutor Theodore Bertucio Jr. had argued that the offenses were serious and warranted a long sentence.

The October 18 incident, involving police from Princeton Borough, West Windsor and East Windsor, ended when Lenz, driving a Twin W ambulance, collided with two East Windsor patrol cars on Route 130 and crashed into a service pole. An East Windsor detective and patrolman were injured in the crash and treated at the Hamilton Hospital.

In April, Lenz had pleaded guilty to multiple charges of kidnapping and aggravated assault and possession of a weapon and hollow-point bullets.

that a spare key in a magnetic case had been attached to the bumper and may have been found by the thief. He values the car at $3,000.

A 1977 Pinto station wagon was stolen Saturday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. from the Princeton YMCA lot. The Trenton owner told police that she had just purchased the car for $363 from a discount auto dealer. Police said the keys had been left in the car.

A member of ETS security called Borough police Tuesday to report that the car had been recovered on the Educational Testing Service grounds in poor condition. It was returned to the owner.

Four nine-foot rolls of energy-saving insulation, worth $520, were stolen last week from inside a house under construction on Montadale Drive. Police identified the owner as the Baltzer Enterprises Construction Co. of Princeton.

A three-foot plaster statue of the Madonna, valued at $150, was stolen two weeks ago from the front yard of a Ewing Street home. Police described the statue as white with a blue background.

In one of two purse thefts, an Olden Lane resident reported the theft of her blue-striped handbag from her car while she was shopping last week in the Acme in the Princeton Shopping Center. She lost $135. The bag is valued at $30.

An employee of a Nassau Street store lost $20 when her brown leather purse was stolen last Wednesday between 12:30 and 5:45. Police said the victim had left it unattended in a rear office.

Assorted food items valued at $20, including tomatoes and eggplant, were stolen between 12:30 and 12:40 Friday morning from the lobby of the Ivy Club, 43 Prospect Avenue. The food was in paper bags which had been left in the lobby.

Rear Wheels Fall Off; Dump Truck Overturns

A 1969 International dump truck overturned Friday on Princeton-Kingston Road, some 75 feet north of Dodds Lane, when its right rear dual wheels fell off. The truck, owned by Sassman's Driveway Construction of Princeton, was a total loss.

The driver, Daniel J. Wackley of Dunellen, told police that he was driving South on Princeton-Kingston Road just before noon when his truck suddenly veered to the right side of the roadway. When he steered left, his load of crushed stone shifted to the right, causing his truck to overturn.

A witness, David Young of Lawrence Apartments, traveling behind the truck, told police that the right rear wheels suddenly came off the truck. The truck left 97 feet of gouge marks along the shoulder of the road before coming to rest 16 feet further on. It caused 25 feet of lawn damage at 874 Princeton-Kingston Road, and 10 feet of lawn damage at the property of 884.

Mr. Wackley was treated at Princeton Medical Center for lacerations and contusions of the arm and hand. He was issued summonses by Ptl. John Buzko for driving while his license was suspended and for driving an unsafe vehicle.

An investigation by Ptl. Buzko revealed that two adjacent wheel lugs were missing from the six-lug wheel drum prior to the accident. That caused the remaining four lugs to be subjected to excessive stress, the officer noted in his report.

Traffic had to be detoured until road crews were able to clear the roadway of the spilled stones.

Golf Shack Is Vandalized On Springdale Course

A ten- by ten-foot building located on the Springdale Golf Club course and used as a rest room by golfers has been damaged by vandals.

Police report that the inside walls and windows were torn down, causing an estimated $1,000 in damage. Plumbing inside the shingle-roofed building was not damaged.

Capt. Jack Petrone reported that empty beer and vodka bottles were found inside and around the building. Discov-

Housing Information Available to Seniors

Free Housing Information is available for Mercer County residents through the CHISS (Consumer Housing Information Service for Seniors), a program jointly sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and the Mercer County Office on Aging.

Volunteers trained by AARP and local cooperating service agencies will be available to meet individually with older persons and their families to discuss ways to solve their housing problems.

Evelyn Craig, coordinator for the CHISS Program, said the service is designed to help older persons to understand the various housing options and services that are available. "Our outreach workers and housing information volunteers have been specially trained and provided with specific information on solutions older renters and homeowners can use to solve housing issues," she said.

Persons utilizing the CHISS service may request that the volunteer meet with them in their home or in any other convenient location. CHISS workers may ask older persons to include their family members in the meeting.

For further information about the service, call Mrs. Craig at 924-0814 or the Mercer County Office on Aging at 989-6661.

$50,000 Pledged to Rider For Business Building

The James Kerney Foundation has pledged $50,000 over the next five years in support of Rider College's $10.5 million, five-year development program. The funds will go toward the construction of a new $5.4 million School of Business Administration building, one of the three areas of critical need Rider has identified in its development plan.

Mr. Kerney (1873-1934) was an editor, jurist, author, and statesman. For several years, he was editor and publisher of the Trenton Times. He served as a lay judge to New Jersey's highest court, was a friend and political advisor of Woodrow Wilson, and was involved in many community projects.

Rider's five-year development program also calls for $3.5 million to be raised in unrestricted gifts through the College's annual giving program and for $1.6 million in endowed funds to provide support for faculty enrichment and student aid.

Volunteers should be 18 years old or older and be interested in talking to people who are experiencing problems. The course teaches active listening skills as well as offers sessions on topics such as coping with family problems, interpersonal relationships, death, grief, substance abuse, telephone crisis intervention, loneliness, suicide prevention, and depression.

Volunteers may attend weekly morning classes (9 a.m.-noon) or evening classes (7:30-10:30 p.m.) beginning Thursday, September 11. All classes will be held at Trinity United Methodist Church, 1985 Pennington Road, Ewing (across from Trenton State College). At the first session, car pools may be arranged.

Once the course is completed, volunteers will be asked to serve 12 hours a month at their convenience on the CONTACT Helpline.

The public is invited to a special no-obligation orientation session on Thursday, September 4, from 10-11 a.m. or 7:30-8:30 p.m., also at Trinity United Methodist Church.

Volunteers may register in advance or at the first session. For more information, call 585-2244 or 896-2120.

One to grow with.

"We'll buy a cheaper piano. Then if she stays with it we can always buy a Steinway."

It sounds logical. And yet...

If you take her ambition seriously enough to buy the Steinway,* will she take it more seriously herself?

If you buy the cheaper piano will she hear and feel what a piano is truly capable of? Will she develop the musical values necessary to move ahead?

Is the cheaper piano really more affordable? Your Steinway dealer or an astute banker can surprise you on that score.

Buy the Steinway and you have selected the finest instrument of its kind ... the one found in conservatories and practice rooms everywhere ... a piano she can start with, grow with, and stay with even after her debut ... and, a piano that will suffer less depreciation than the cheaper piano, should she lose interest and you decide to sell.

*The lease expensive piano isn't always the least expensive piano.

THIS IS THE TOKAMAK FUSION TEST REACTOR: An immense hodge-podge of tubes, wires, pipes, pumps, boxes, platforms, testing devices and computers all but obscures the relatively simple doughnut-shaped vacuum vessel in which a deuterium fuel is confined and heated to temperatures higher than the sun in order to release energy.

Fusion Test Reactor Achieves New Highs

The Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor (TFTR) at the Plasma Physics Lab (PPL) achieved a temperature of 200 million degrees Celsius in tests run in mid-July.

This is equivalent to 360 million degrees Fahrenheit and is 10 times hotter than the center of the sun, scientists say. It is also the highest temperature ever recorded in a laboratory and constitutes a major breakthrough in the search to develop a fusion reactor as a safe and economical means of generating energy.

The announcement was made jointly last Thursday by Harold P. Furth, PPL director, and John F. Clarke of the Department of Energy which funds the fusion research here. The press conference at the laboratory was attended by some 100 newsgatherers and scientists.

"This marks a major milestone in the goal of achieving fusion energy," Mr. Clarke stated. "The temperature achieved is in the range required for a fusion reactor. These promising results bring us closer to the goal of fusion energy."

The record temperature is 2½ times hotter than the previous record temperature for a tokamak — a particular type of fusion reactor — which was achieved with the Princeton Large Torus device in 1980.

Substantial progress toward meeting other critical requirements of a successful fusion reaction, such as density of the plasma and the device's energy insulation, was also achieved in the recent experiments.

Fusion reactions occur when the nuclei of the isotopes of hydrogen (deuterium and tritium) "fuse" to form a helium atom, releasing energy in the process. Fusion scientists see as their next main goal the "break-even" point, where the energy produced equals the plasma should be able to energy required to keep the plasma hot.

In the TFTR experiments, hydrogen gas is heated to the point where the electrons are stripped from each atom's nucleus, creating a plasma. This plasma is confined by the doughnut-shaped magnet fields of the TFTR. The experimental advances were based in part on injecting power neutral beams of deuterium or hydrogen atoms into the confined plasma, and in part on the discovery of a new technique for improving the heat insulating properties of the magnetic bottle.

The combination of ultra-high temperature and high plasma pressure that characterizes the new TFTR regime has permitted experimental study of some important phenomena that were predicted theoretically during earlier phases of tokamak research. In 1971, Soviet and British scientists calculated that a reactor-level tokamak generate a sufficiently strong spontaneous electrical current, the "bootstrap" current, so as to maintain the tokamak magnetic field in a "steady" state.

According to last Thursday's announcement, preliminary evidence supports the existence of the bootstrap current, which would substantially improve tokamak reactor economics. Dr. Furth also noted that the levels of plasma temperature and heat confinement achieved in the TFTR experiments during July exceeded the objectives specified for TFTR when the project was first authorized in March, 1976.

The Princeton TFTR is one of four major tokamak facilities in the world today, the others being in the United Kingdom, Japan, and the Soviet Union. Princeton is hoping to be the site of the next phase ignition reactor, which would cost $300 million.

Palmer Square Type Face Has Long History Here

To the Editor of Town Topics: Princeton and Trenton newspapers report initial opposition by Collins Corporation's prospective Palmer Square store-space renters to employing the lettering, the typeface, which for 45 years has been the hallmark of Palmer Square store signs.

Newspapers under-stated the case and under-informed readers and renters alike, by merely referring to "Saturday Evening Post" lettering. The proper name is "Plymouth Italic" type. This beautiful, time-tested type looks like — is — "Colonial" in appearance and history. Papers would render readers and renters alike a service by printing examples of this typeface, e.g. as in the Rotary Club of Princeton letterhead.

Not only did Palmer himself specify "Plymouth Italic" — it is simply more "colonial" and Princeton and historical, thereby more attractive, than are varying logos. Let prospective renters know this; recall 45 years here on the Square; a reflection of colonial times and our country's origins. Local businessmen easily, fully concurred in using this type. (Individual store window logo displays can reveal corporate wishes and inform customers.) It is Princeton and Palmer Square which brought customers here. Stores are "comfortable" here.

Furthermore: Tie in 45 years of Plymouth Italic type with banning overhanging signs; and do note how the absence of garish neon light signs in the Square and the full length of Nassau Street, coupled with Princeton University lawns, give Princeton the best-looking small town "main stem" in the country.

B.E. BERGESEN, JR.
140 Greatview Drive

In Princeton, Lettering Counts More than Logo

To The Editor of Town Topics:

Jaeger won't come to Palmer Square unless they can have their own logo. What great news — who needs them? The tourists can go to New York City or Jaeger's home town, London, to buy their overpriced goods.

Mr. Collins doesn't seem to comprehend why Palmer Square is unique and why its beauty draws people to the area. One very good reason is the uniformity of the lettering of the signs. If that tradition is dropped we might as well be Anyplace, U.S.A.

NANCY MILLER
Princeton Pike

Uniform Sign Lettering Supported for Square

To the Editor of Town Topics: Until now I have been generally pleased with the changes Collins Development has brought to my hometown.

However, I feel they would be violating the spirit and continuity of the historic section of Palmer Square with their proposed changes in the store sign lettering.

I agree with Mr. von Zumbusch that keeping the lettering the same ties together those beautiful but somewhat disjointed buildings and sets the square apart as a distinctive area.

I feel a store, chain or otherwise has plenty of opportunity to display a logo or color scheme. If that is a condition for a business, coming to the square, they mustn't understand the strong sense of tradition in Princeton and perhaps they should look elsewhere for space.

Thank the Landaus for once again hosting the greatest of summer events — the Princeton Senior Citizens Community Picnic. For twelve years now this picnic has entertained 300 to 350 nursing home and older residents in Princeton with music, food and festivities. It is an event which is anticipated with great enthusiasm each year — especially at Princeton Nursing Home and Merwick.

We would also like to express our thanks to Princeton University Conference Office, Princeton Recreation Department and to Invalid Coach and TRADE — To Gillian Godfrey, Tom Mladenetz, Dot Kruger, Carol Litman and board members of the Senior Resource Center who were of invaluable assistance last Thursday.

How very fortunate we are in Princeton to be the recipient of Landau's generous community spirit.

A Good Time Had by All At Senior Citizen Picnic

To the Editor of Town Topics: Yes, you can say "Landau's Loves Senior Citizens" because you have proved it so many times.

We had a very good time at the picnic on Thursday and our observations indicated that everyone was enjoying the party.

We wish to thank Landau's for its generosity, good food and drink, and creating an atmosphere of camaraderie. A special thank you to the pianist, Sandy Maxwell and the accordionist, Rose Marie Cavanaugh, for their golden oldies. Thanks to you for all that you do for the senior citizens in the Princeton community. Also, thanks to all those volunteers whose help made everything so pleasant. We look forward to this event next year.

Night Sounds of Nature Focus of Walk Friday

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association invites members of the public to explore the mysterious wonders of the night.

On Friday, the Watershed Association will be conducting its popular "Exploring the Night" program on its 540-acre nature reserve. This program is offered throughout the year so that interested people may discover the array of natural nighttime experiences.

Nighttime in mid-August offers the sights and sounds of owls and bullfrogs as well as the chorus of leg-rubbing and wing-rubbing insects. In addition to these wonders, the group will attempt to determine the nighttime temperature by listening to the "song" of the katydid.

The walk will begin at 8:30 on Friday at the Pond House on Wargo Road in Hopewell Township. All are invited. Registration is required and there is a small fee. To register or for more information call 737-3735.

OR Zoning

Under state land use law, the filing of such a protest means that there must be a two-thirds vote of Township Committee, not just a simple majority, to adopt the measure. Committeeman William Cherry was absent, and Committeewoman Carol Wojciechowski was disqualified from discussing or voting on the amendment for what was described as a financial involvement with a principal in a company with property in the OR district.

A two-thirds vote of Committee means four of the five members. Mr. Schmierer noted. With only three present and able to vote, it was decided to hold the public hearing as scheduled but postpone the vote until Committee meets on Monday, August 25, at 8 in the Valley Road building.

An effort was made, principally by Gerald Skey, attorney for the Ricciardo brothers who propose a 34,000-square-foot office building on five acres between Terhune Road and the Italian American Sportsmen's Club, to delay a decision until after September 1. Mr. Schmierer told Mr. Skey that a major application was pending and that the Planning Board had requested Committee action before the deadline for hearing that application.

The application of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Lowe to build four office buildings of 198,000 square feet was deemed "complete" in May and must be heard within 95 days, according to land use law. That deadline is now said by Planning Board officials to be September 1, not August 24 as previously stated.

The Planning Board believes this application is of such magnitude, generating almost 800 cars (one car for every 1,000 square feet of office space) that to be forced to approve it will be counter-productive to the reduction in density, and thus in traffic through residential streets, that is the goal of the revision.

Thus, the Board is anxious to have the ordinance amendment on the books before hearing the application. In all likelihood, then, the Lowe application will not be heard when the Planning Board meets on Thursday, August 21, because Township Committee will not have voted on the ordinance, but will schedule an extra meeting sometime the next week.

Dwight Minton, chairman and chief executive officer of Church & Dwight, offered two compromises to the amendment. As presented by Gerald Lenaz, a professional planner retained by Church & Dwight, one suggestion would modify the proposed realignment of the boundary between OR 1 and OR 2 to leave all existing office and research facilities in the southern end of Bunn Drive-Harrison Street, his included, within the less restrictive OR 2. This proposal also would keep the 18 percent FAR in OR 2 but reduce it to eight percent, as proposed by the Planning Board, in OR 1.

Under the Church & Dwight second option, the FAR would be reduced four percentage points in each district, i.e. to 14 and eight instead of 10 and eight as currently proposed, but the FAR in the OR 2 would be allowed an increase back up to 18 percent if a traffic management plan is devised that would keep peak hour traffic at the level it would be under 14 percent FAR.

Mr. Lenaz sought to make a distinction between the single-user corporate offices with a high research component — such as Church & Dwight — and multi-tenanted general or speculative office building, particularly in terms of traffic generation. "Since future traffic generation is the apparent driving force for the proposed rezoning effort," Mr. Lenaz noted in a memo, "public action should be directed toward the OR-1 area where the greatest future traffic impact will be generated."

Mr. Minton said that Church & Dwight, presently occupying 64,000 square feet, fully expected to be able to build to the 174,000 square feet allowed by a FAR of 18 when it decided to locate its corporate headquarters here two years ago. An expansion of 33,000 square feet is planned in 1988-89, but under the proposed re-zoning to 10 percent FAR, the limit would be 97,600 square feet, or 56 percent of the FAR when the property was purchased.

"This cuts the value of our investment in half," he asserted. "The proposed ordinance is unfair to Church & Dwight."

Dr. Lowe of Chatham Associates, which plans the 198,000 square foot Lowe Office Park, pleaded for "compassion and understanding" on the part of Township Committee, as he had before the Planning Board. He spoke of having spent four years searching for a building site in Princeton and having bought property diagonally across from Princeton Community Housing two years ago. "The land was priced at 18 percent FAR, and that amount was paid," Dr. Lowe said. He spoke of the million dollars in land and fees he had already expended, not counting the cost he will incur to build the portion of Stuart Road that goes through his property. He said a FAR of eight percent was not economically feasible, not for anyone. "I plead for your compassion and understanding," he repeated.

Several residents gave a different viewpoint. John Werth, Terhune Road, said that if the firms had in fact thoroughly investigated Princeton before purchasing land in the area, they would have known that six years ago the Planning Board had recommended a similar reduction in the FAR "because it foresaw the horrendous traffic problems."

Mr. Werth suggested that with the amount of land available in the OR district, the firms needing to expand could purchase additional land. He pointed out that although promises, such as traffic management measures, may be made to appease the concerns of neighbors, circumstances change and neighbors find out nothing can be done.

Wayne Whitelock, Ross Stevenson Circle, spoke about the quality of life for the people along Mt. Lucas Road, where he has observed a "drastic" increase in traffic. "Hedges are hit, people are hit, there is a danger to pets, to children," he said if the CEOs are intent on putting a plan in effect to manage traffic, "why aren't they doing it now?"

"Mt. Lucas was never meant to be a superhighway," Mr. Whitelock continued. "It's a twisty, turny road, the camber is wrong, the sightlines are wrong, the surface is wrong. Maybe it could be straightened out as a four-lane highway. The quality of life is at stake. People's life is at stake."

The previous week, Planning Director Duggan Kimball made these points to the Planning Board in support of the ordinance:

- that the road system as it is today is an integral part of the scale of Princeton "as we know it."

- that a road system at a "higher scale" would permit a higher FAR, "but that would entail changes to Princeton that are fundamental and dramatic and cannot be recommended."

- that alternative approaches to traffic management require a much larger corporate concentration, and "Princeton does not have a good track record of success" in this area.

- the average FAR in the already built OR district is 10, with Princeton Professional Park at the high end of the spectrum at 14 percent, and Peterson's Guides at the low end with five percent. Church & Dwight is presently at seven percent. Mr. Kimball said this average "confirms for me the reasonableness of the proposal in that when you zone you have to look at the character of the area. The new FARs of 10 and eight percent are consistent with the character of the area."

Moreover, in a memo regarding master plan revisions, planning consultants Wallace Roberts & Todd noted that "Existing zoning as Princeton approaches full development will tip the scales toward making Princeton more of a commercial area. Down-zoning would maintain the balance that exists today between residential and office use," Mr. Kimball said.

Dr. Zaininger, an executive vice president, member of the board of directors and research director of the Corporation's Research and Technology Laboratories in Princeton, replaces Guenter H. Jaensch on completion of the latter's four-year tenure as head of the Iselin complex. The SCRS is a central source for specialized services to the Siemens U.S. companies including research and development, business analysis, strategic planning, procurement, traffic and export administration, patents and licensing, and advertising and design. Dr. Zaininger will continue his research director functions at the laboratories on a shared basis with his new responsibilities as SCRS president.

Dr. Zaininger, a Princeton University alumnus, was with RCA's David Sarnoff Research Center for almost 20 years. After a short tenure as assistant director, technology commercialization, in the Department of Energy's Solar Energy Research Institute, he served as the director of the Army's Microelectronics Division at the Ft. Monmouth Laboratories and as the Army Very High Speed Integrated Circuit Program Manager.

In 1980, he joined Siemens as vice president, corporate research and technology with a responsibility to establish a new Siemens research facility in the U.S. to support strong corporate product thrusts. The Siemens Research and Technology Laboratories at Princeton, specializing in advanced technologies and applications in artificial intelligence, microelectronics, robotics, software technology and speech recognition, is a product of his efforts; Siemens is now in the process of building a new and expanded laboratory research facility in the Princeton

LET'S TALK ABOUT

MITE WATCH -
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Deciduous trees often take on a bronze, dusty look this time of year. Spruce, Hemlock, Arborvitae, even Azeleas, Boxwood and Privet may have a chlorotic appearance. Too often this is dismissed as due to hot, dry weather. The cause, many times, is an infestation of mites, some so tiny that hundreds congregate on a single leaf. Mite damage is not merely marring the green appearance of leaves and needles, but in actuality, sapping the tree's vitality. Twig dieback may result. In some areas where drought conditions exist this can hasten a tree's decline. Mites can be controlled by spraying the leaves with a miticide. Supplement this spraying with a "deep-root" application of a balanced liquid fertilizer to help restore the tree's vigor. To determine if your tree has mites just make this simple test - shake or beat a few twigs over a sheet of paper or cardboard. Mites that drop can be seen scurrying across the paper.

Do watch your Dogwoods carefully if the hot, dry weather continues! The stresses on Dogwoods in our area over the past few years has taken its toll on many specimen trees. Consider deep root feeding to help combat Dogwood injury.

Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) with any questions you may have concerning your valuable trees and shrubs.

Son of Jane S. and P. Michel Lion, he was born in Princeton Medical Center and attended Princeton schools before moving to McLean with his family in 1979. His father was a professor of engineering at Princeton University, and his mother was active in the Hospital Fete and other community organizations. Billy played ice hockey, soccer and lacrosse here and later founded the McLean Area Lacrosse League and was its president for two years.

He was a graduate of McLean High School and attended the University of North Carolina. He was a member of Nassau Presbyterian Church here.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, David, James and Thomas Lion; his grandmother, Emily F. Sanford, and an uncle, James M. Sanford.

The service was held at National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C. with burial in National Memorial Park, Falls Church, Va.

Memorial contributions may be made to Loudon Memorial Hospital, Leesburg, Va., c/o Dr. Errol Segall.

Glenn F. Petrone, 28, of Ridge Road, Monmouth Junction, died August 8 at home.

Born in Princeton, Mr. Petrone was a lifelong resident of Monmouth Junction. He was a self-employed carpenter. He was a past member of the Monmouth Junction First Aid & Rescue Squad and the Monmouth Junction volunteer Fire Department.

Surviving are his wife, Janet Z. Petrone; a son and daughter, Brian F. and Rebecca H. Petrone, both at home; his parents, Fred F. and Doris K. Petrone of Monmouth Junction; and a sister, Susan M. Petrone of Plainsboro.

A memorial mass was scheduled to be celebrated this Wednesday morning at St. Cecelia's Church, Monmouth Junction. Burial will follow in Elmwood Cemetery, North Brunswick. The family planned to receive friends at 600 Ridge Road, Monmouth Junction, upon conclusion of services.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, 2303 Woodbridge Avenue, Edison, or to the Monmouth Junction First Aid and Rescue Squad, Monmouth Junction.

Banesh Hoffman, a physicist and mathematician who was one of the early members of the Institute for Advanced Study, died August 5 at his home in Flushing, Queens. He was 79 years old.

Born in England, the only son of Polish immigrants, Dr. Hoffman attended St. Paul's School in Richmond and Merton College, Oxford, where he received a bachelor's degree with first-class honors in 1929. While at Oxford, he was invited to come to Princeton and work as research associate to Oswald Veblen, a mathematics professor. In 1932 he received a doctorate in mathematics and physics from Princeton.

Dr. Hoffman worked as an instructor at the University of Rochester from 1932 to 1935 when he joined the Institute for Advanced Study. He worked with Albert Einstein and a Polish physicist, Leopold Infeld, on a paper entitled "Gravitational Equations and the Problem of Motion." An amateur pianist, he would play duets with Einstein, who was an amateur violinist.

Dr. Hoffman joined the faculty of Queens College in 1937. He rose to full professor and retired in the late 1970's. He had also been a visiting professor at Kings College, University of London, and at Harvard. He spent the years since retirement writing books and lecturing and was perhaps the best known critic of multiple-choice testing. In his 1962 book, The Tyranny of Testing, and other writings, he vehemently opposed standardized tests as superficial measures of a person's knowledge.

Surviving are his wife, the former Doris Gooday; a son, Laurence of Claremont, Calif., and a daughter, Deborah of Berkeley, Calif., and two grandsons, both of Claremont.

New Pastor of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church Brings Energy, Social Consciousness, to His Job

Under new leadership, the black churches in Princeton are experiencing a renewal in growth and vigor that is having a ripple effect on the whole community.

Each of the three black churches has a new fulltime pastor. At First Baptist Church, the Rev. Michael Nabors, who served as assistant pastor beginning in 1982 when he was still a student at Princeton Theological Seminary, has been promoted to be fulltime pastor. Mr. Nabors took part in the recent three-hour meeting at Borough Hall to discuss differences between Borough police and the black community. He was also invited to speak to the first meeting of a newly forming group of black parents concerned about problems of drug abuse and loitering.

Adrian A. McFarlane

The Rev. David Cousin Sr., who also was present at the meeting between Borough officials and Borough police, has just begun his ministry at Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, succeeding the Rev. Dr. Frank Tennie, who was re-assigned in the custom of rotating ministers in the Methodist church. Mr. Cousin comes to Princeton from a church in Salem, N.J., and has also pastored two churches in Montgomery, Ala.

The third new leader is the Rev. Dr. Adrian McFarlane, minister of the Witherspoon Street Presbyterian Church since March, 1985. With Mr. Nabors on vacation, and Mr. Cousin only just arrived, TOWN TOPICS was unable to present profiles of all three leaders in a single article, but chose instead to highlight Dr. McFarlane at this time.

Jamaica His Home. Adrian McFarlane was born in Jamaica 42 years ago. "Jamaica, the Caribbean, not Jamaica, the West Indies," he notes, explaining half in jest and half seriously that he says that in order not to continue the "geographical mistake" made by Christopher Columbus 400 years ago. His father died when he was young, and his early education was at the private Presbyterian school to which his mother sent him near their home in Ochos Rios, although she herself was an Anglican.

Ochos Rios is a resort town, and Dr. McFarlane worked as a night auditor in the hotel industry for five years, in training for hotel management. But when he married a young woman whose family had migrated to Jamaica from India — he calls her an "East Indian" — he decided to turn to his early interest in going to seminary.

While his wife worked in a bank, he attended Milliken College, a private Presbyterian college in Decatur, Ill., where he earned a degree in philosophy and religion. Homesick for Jamaica, he took a year off before entering Princeton Theological Seminary. Returning to Jamaica in 1974 with the M.Div. degree, he became chaplain of Knox College, a private school of grades kindergarten through community college in the English tradition.

"I'm here because I see a challenge, and I like challenges."

"It was an exciting time in Jamaica," Dr. McFarlane recalls. "In 1972 Jamaica changed course from market capitalism to a more socialist form of government," with the election of Michael Manley as prime minister. Dr. McFarlane is quick to point out that the new government was not Marxist, as was later charged, and that in Jamaica, which had been an English colony, a certain degree of socialism already existed. Hospital visits were always free, for instance, he says.

Land Reform. Changes came in education and land reform. For the first time a university education was free and available to anyone who passed the rigid entrance requirements. Hundreds of acres of land owned by absentee landlords — some Jamaican, some European — which had lain waste were either taxed heavily by the government or leased to individual farmers.

Dr. McFarlane describes Michael Manley, who came from an upperclass background, as a suave, self-confident, highly educated man who purged his party of certain Marxist elements and who brought a new self-respect to Jamaica. Jamaicans became managers of hotels, not only bell-boys and waiters. British and Canadian branch banks were nationalized, with Jamaicans in charge for the first time.

During this time Dr. McFarlane became head of the religion department at Knox College, teaching philosophy and theology 21 hours a week and counseling and preaching in addition. The minister for the local presbytery migrated to the United States, leaving three congregations, totalling 800 members, without a pastor. Overcoming Dr. McFarlane's strong preference for teaching and preaching rather than pastoring, these congregations prevailed upon him to become interim minister.

It meant preaching at one church every Sunday and at the other two once a month. By 1977, knowing he couldn't keep pace with such a schedule, in addition to his teaching hours, he took a position as minister of St. Paul's Kirk in Kingston, the capital of Jamaica. One of the oldest churches, it also had the reputation of being the top Presbyterian church on the island, with a congregation that included the speaker of the House of Parliament and top level politicians.

National Exposure. "That pulpit gave me quite a bit of exposure," Dr. McFarlane says, matter-of-factly. The church received national television coverage three times during his tenure and was broadcast on radio innumerable times. He found himself "unwittingly" drawn into pulpit debates.

Because, as he says, "My first love is teaching," Dr. McFarlane complemented his work at St. Paul's Church with teaching at Mico Teacher's College, one of the oldest teacher's colleges in the western hemi-

It is not easy to imagine a more painstaking production of Marsha Norman's Pulitzer Prize-winning two-character drama "night, Mother" than the one that opened last weekend and runs till August 24 at the Rider College Studio Theatre as one of Nick Procaccino's Stage One offerings.

June Connerton as the dotty, possibly impaired, mother and Derry Light as her suicidal daughter are interestingly cast and perform from ably to brilliantly under the skilled and sensitive hand of guest director Granville Burgess.

The setting — living room and fully equipped and stocked kitchen of a modest home in probably Virginia — is totally convincing, thanks to Gene Ericson and Bill Hoover; and the small — 100-or-so-seat — auditorium is a comfortably air-conditioned adjunct of Rider's main stage where most Studio One plays are being done this summer.

If this "night, Mother" cannot be unqualifiedly recommended, the fault is not with any of the above but with the play itself which, though widely acclaimed, will not be to every theatergoer's taste and struck this reviewer as seriously flawed.

Characters Unappealing. The two characters, though attractively acted, are not very attractive nor finally very appealing human beings, and the raking over of old family coals by mother Thelma and daughter Jessie, while often touching and at times poetic, would not be dramatically absorbing were it not for the morbid suspense created, or contrived, by Jessie's impending act of bloody violence, the reasons for which are not really clear.

True, she has had enough hard luck to bring a weak person to the point of pathological self-pity and contemplation of self-slaughter; epilepsy since childhood, a rattle-brained candy junkie of a mother to care for, a loved father dead, a no-good husband who deserted her, and a no-good son who would steal her watch if she didn't leave it to him in her pathetic box of willed valuables.

But Jessie does not seem

weak — and this is not just Derry Light's own strong character shining through. She is written strong: articulate, organized, organizing, in fact downright managerial in the way she turns over the household to Thelma; and stubbornly unswervable in her determination to end it all — with maximum cruel impact on Thelma, who has only her dot-tiness to defend her.

Moreover, Jessie has been feeling better lately, has not had a seizure — or "fit" as Thelma insists on calling it — in a long while, thanks to new medication.

So why??

Jessie's answer is that she has been ineffectual all her 30-odd years and just this once she is going to assume power, make a decision no one can countermand. But her ineffectuality is not established. Thelma is enough to drive a housemate to pretty strenuous escape efforts: but suicide?

If all the people who have reasons as good as Jessie's for shooting themselves were actually to do so, the air everywhere would be blue with gunsmoke.

It is hard to escape the conclusion that the author's reasons for Jessie's killing herself in this melodramatic way are clearer than Jessie's.

The "Idea." That lightbulb labeled "idea" shines like a theatrical worklight through the fairly brief, intermissionless evening: "What if a hardluck daughter were to dig Dad's old automatic from the attic, clean it, oil it, meanwhile dropping macabre little hints to her mother about old towels and cushions to lie on, and then announce she will shortly shoot herself?"

"Then what if this provoked an intimate, heart-to-heart talk between the two — the first one ever — with Mother detailing sad facts about life with Father, Jessie admitting how much she loved her gone husband, and finally Mother's exploring Jessie to hang on awhile longer to keep the candy dishes filled and help her die?"

"And what if Jessie, instead of responding to the childish old lady's pleas, were to say 'night, Mother,' shove her aside, lock herself in her bedroom and DO it? Wouldn't that make a strong play?"

Well, it made a successful play, soon to appear as a film. But its effect was largely lost on this reviewer because for us

IN WILLIAMS PLAY: Catherine Allgor is Hannah, and Herbert McAneny her grandfather, Nonno, in this scene from Stage One Productions' "The Night of the Iguana" by Tennessee Williams. The classic American drama, directed by Nick Procaccino, may be seen at the Rider College Fine Arts Theatre August 14-17, 21 to 24 and 28 to 30 at 8 p.m. There is also a Sunday matinee at 2 on Sunday August 31.

(S. Michael Schnessel photo)

'night, Mother came to death without coming to life; without making us forget for long that we were witnessing a well-crafted play and not an episode we believed so fully we could lose ourselves in it.

If Thelma were played stronger, there would be more dramatic conflict and Jessie would seem less of a bully. But she is not written strong.

If the subject matter interests you, by all means see this fine production.

Your reviewer admits to bias against competent young people's using their old mothers' homes as self-shooting galleries — or vice versa — and against literary works that seem to offer this as defensible, even brave, behavior.

But some in the opening night audience seemed moved. They and the Pulitzer people and the New York critics clearly found something in 'night, Mother we didn't. Maybe you will too.

— William McCleery

Kresge Films for Week Set in Europe, England

Summer Cinema at Kresge Auditorium will feature a double bill headed by the late Luchino Visconti's rarely seen 1963 screen adaptation of Giuseppe Lampedusa's The Leopard.

Lampedusa's story is set in Sicily at the time of the Risorgimento in 1860, just as the forces of Garibaldi are preparing to invade the island to bring down the Bourbon dynasty and form a united Italy under King Victor Emmanuel II. Visconti's film examines a civilization on the edge of radical social change, as recounted in the activities of the Saldina family, particularly those of Prince Fabrizio (Burt Lancaster).

The Leopard is a succession of family dinners, picnics, parties, hunting expeditions and religious observances — a pageant of music, painting, architecture, landscape and ideas. The ball sequence that concludes the film runs almost 40 minutes and is one of the classic set pieces of modern cinema. Lancaster's supporting cast includes Alain Delon and the voluptuous Claudia Cardinale as the Bourbon he marries.

The co-feature will be Bertrand Tavernier's Let Joy Reign Supreme, a provocative and visually dazzling recreation of French social and political life during the pre-Revolutionary last years of Philippe, Duke of Orleans. The time is 1720-23, and Tavernier's film focuses on three men: Philippe, the Regent for the young King Louis XIV and a civilized and intelligent yet debauched man played by Tavernier's frequent leading man Philippe Noiret; his co-administrator of state, the Abbe Dubois, scheming to be made archbishop (Jean Rochefort); and a Breton nationalist (Jean-Pierre Mareille) who has dreams of seceding from France to establish the Republic of Brittany.

Francois Truffaut's The Woman Next Door will open the Saturday-to-Sunday double feature. Bernard (Gerard Depardieu) is happily married, and he and his wife live in suburban Grenoble. Their peace and harmony is upset when the house next door is rented by a couple, of whom the wife (Fanny Ardant) happens to be Bernard's former mistress. When the two meet again, seven years after the end of their affair, they agree to be just friends.

But civility and discretion soon fail, and Bernard is determined to return their relationship to its old, obsessive level. Soon the two are meeting several afternoons each week in a local hotel. They become increasingly reckless, invigorated, and both abandon their respective spouses, so

'Give Iowa a Try; See 'The Music Man' at Washington Crossing

In the opening number of The Music Man, the chorus suggests, "You might give Iowa a try." It's a sound recommendation. Although set in middle America, The Music Man is actually playing at Washington Crossing State Park in an Encore Theatre production that provides an evening of good clean fun.

The play itself is a familiar delight — American as apple pie, a universal favorite. The characters are engaging: the traveling salesman, long on charm but short on scruples; the prim librarian who brings out his better self as she liberates her own loving nature; the match-making Irish mama; the winsome kid brother; the pompous mayor, prone to Malapropisms, and his wife, self-appointed cultural maven. The plot is suitably unsophisticated but neat, and it moves right along as the fast-talking salesman keeps one step ahead of exposure for fraud while he sells his scam of creating a boys' band in River City.

As for the music, this show contains some of the all-time, everybody-hum-along hits of American musical theater — "Goodnight My Someone," "Till There Was You," and (of course) "76 Trombones." The 17-person orchestra playing with Encore for this production did a commendable job with all the music.

The big ensemble numbers, sung and danced with verve and enthusiasm, were the best feature of the show. The voices of the chorus were strong, bright and tuneful; the dancing, choreographed by Joanne Kerollis, was spirited and neatly executed, despite the fact that the "crowd scenes" really were crowded, with more than 50 people on stage.

In the first production number, the townspeople and the setting were presented to the audience. Simple but effective costumes evoked heartland America in the teens: long skirts, shirtwaists, schoolgirls in pinafores and black stockings, boys in knickerbockers. Sets included a pair of ingenious banners depicting "Squire's Livery Stable" and "Shinn's Billiards" parlor. These were furled from the top and toted away across the hillside behind the stage for scene changes.

Acoustical Problems. As an outdoor theater, Washington Crossing has a few special sound problems: the chattering of an audience not cued to silence by the dimming of lights; the cacophony of high summer's cicadas. This means that a good sound system is really important. Unfortunately for The Music Man, there wasn't one, and clever bits of dialogue and lyric were lost or fell relatively flat simply because the audience was straining so hard to hear.

Professor Harold Hill, the "music man," was played with appeal and vitality by David Callaghan, a good-looking man who came across convincingly as a charmer. But the staging of his songs required considerable moving from place to place, and the microphones sometimes failed to pick up his singing voice, which was not very strong. This resulted in a hard-to-follow "Trouble"; a "76 Trombones" that was disappointing despite good staging; and an almost unintelligible "Sadder But Wiser Girl" that diluted the impact of some nice dancing and funny business by Michael Merican as Hill's sidekick, Marcellus Washburn.

Angela McCann played Marian Paroo, the River City librarian who knows the truth about the ersatz professor but decides that the vision he has means more than the academic training he hasn't. McCann was pretty and persuasive. Her solos ("Goodnight My Someone," "My White Knight") were performed in a clear, carrying voice that mostly overcame the microphone problem.

My personal favorite character was Alexandria Juliet Pieroni as the mayor's wife, Eulalie Mackecknie Shinn, a substantial lady who had no trouble projecting either her voice or her personality. Her retinue of town wives were marvelous in "Pickalittle," their feathered hats bobbing as they strutted and pecked verbally at Marian's reputation. Organized into a modern dance troupe, costumed in knickers and middy blouses to rehearse or white togas and leafy garlands to perform their tableau of "two Grecian urns and a fountain (trickle...trickle...trickle)." Eulalie's ladies were hilarious.

Another use of a popular period art form was the barber-shop quartet that provided diversion for the audience, especially during scene changes, Classics like "Sincere" and "Goodnight Ladies" were tidily woven into the plot and elegantly rendered by Jeff Mershon, John Yates, Jack Pinto Jr. and Jim Dailey. "Lida Rose," sung by the quartet in duet with Marian across the stage, provided one of the most successful scenes in the show. It's a fun evening. Definitely, you should give it a try.

But take a sweater: it gets colder than you expect when the stars come out over the Open Air Theatre.

Encore Theatre's production of The Music Man will play at Washington Crossing on Wednesday through Saturday, August 13 through 16. Tickets cost $5 and $6, and performances begin at 8:30 p.m. The box office (phone 737-1826) opens at 4 p.m. on performance days only.

sure are they that they cannot live without each other. But as things develop, they cannot live with each other, either.

Double-billed with the Truffaut film will be last year's hit melodrama from England, Dance with a Stranger. Written by playwright Shelagh Delaney and directed by newcomer Mike Newell, it stars Miranda Richardson as Ruth Ellis, the London nightclub hostess who, in 1955, murdered her boyfriend and became the last woman to be executed in Great Britain. Newell's film version of the true-life story of Ellis is an unsentimental speculation on events leading up to the murder, made fascinating by what seems — after the fact — to be their inevitability.

In a striking film debut, Miranda Richardson shrieks her way through Ellis' sordid life with great bravura, coiffed and costumed in the Marilyn Monroe fashion. Rupert Everett plays her lover, a spoiled, sodden rich boy with a passion for racing cars, and their scenes together are definitely "R" rated.

Single ticket admission for one or a double feature is $3.75 at the door.

Unlike big city street theater, no hat is passed. The project, funded in part by the Princeton Youth Fund, is strictly for fun and experience, according to Candy Sorensen, CTU educa-

Theatre Trip to "Cats" Set by South Brunswick

Registration is underway for a bus trip to Broadway on Saturday, October 18, to see either Cats or Song & Dance. The trip is sponsored by the South Brunswick Recreation Department/Cultural Arts Commission.

Prices vary depending on age and residential status. The bus will depart at noon and return directly after the show.

'Fact Book' Is Planned By Princeton Ballet

Princeton Ballet volunteers and staff are compiling a "Fact Book" to be distributed in Central Jersey in September. Ten thousand copies of the 32- to 48-page book will be available free at area stores, libraries, professional offices and other locations.

The 5½-by-8½ "Fact Book" will include information about The School of Princeton Ballet, PB II, and Princeton Ballet Company; a guide to Central Jersey performing arts groups and sites; with pictures and advertising by area sponsors. It is intended to generate publicity about the 32-year-old non-profit Princeton Ballet, as well as promote businesses that support the organization.

Brooklawn 8-4 Winner Over Princeton Post 76

Princeton Post 76 suffered its first setback in the state American Legion Baseball Tournament Sunday, when it dropped an 8-4 decision to Brooklawn, the defending state champions from Camden County. The loss knocked the Princeton team into the losers' bracket in the Final Eight competition at Breslin Field in Lyndhurst, and was the first for manager Larry Bender's team after four consecutive state tournament victories.

Bender headed for Lyndhurst with a strategy that called for Post 76, the District 3 champions, to rely on pitching and defense to keep the other teams from getting an early lead, and for Post 76 to score first.

It worked in Post 76's first game with District 1 champion Clifton (all of the final eight District champions entered the state competition at Lyndhurst with clean slates), as Princeton jumped to a 6-0 lead after three innings and won easily, 11-5.

Against Brooklawn the formula broke down. Princeton outthit the defending champions, 12-9, but the defense unraveled as Post 76 was guilty of five errors. Starting pitcher Tim Rumer was effective but not overpowering.

Whatever the final outcome, it has been a memorable year for Post 76, which had never won a state tournament game. "Win or lose, it's been a successful season — no ifs, ands or buts," said Bender just before the start of play at Lyndhurst. "We didn't win the league but I think we've shown how good a team we are."

"We've got a good solid team with 18 good kids. Give them the credit. The confidence is there; these kids believe in themselves."

Even after the loss to

Post 76 Stays Alive in State Tournament With Late Inning Win Over Rutherford

With four of its players playing hurt, Princeton Post 76 scored four runs in the eighth inning for a gutsy, come-from-behind, 10-8 victory over Rutherford Monday night to stay alive in the New Jersey American Legion Tournament.

The Princeton team is now two wins away from a berth in the state Legion title game. The winner will earn a berth to the Mid-Atlantic Regional tournament held in Boyertown, Pa. while the loser will journey to the New England Regional in New Bedford, Ma. as the New Jersey runner-up champion.

Post 76 was scheduled to meet the winner of the Clifton-Closter game Tuesday night.

Rutherford (23-7-1) had scored four runs in the first inning but Post 76 came back to tie it in the second. After Princeton went ahead 5-4 in the third, Rutherford tied the game again at 5 in the fourth. It remained that way until the dramatic eighth inning.

After getting two quick outs to start the eighth, Post 76 hurler Jay Jordan, who had yielded only two singles through the fourth to seventh innings, was raked for three runs. A walk, an RBI double and three singles sent three runs across and forced Post 76 manager Larry Bender to send Bill Byrne to the mound.

Then it was time for Post 76 to show its mettle. "Pure and simply it was all guts," said Bender later. "With our guys hurting so much, a comeback like this is so sweet."

Danny Sexton opened the Post 76 half of the eighth with a walk and advanced on a wild pitch. Tim Rumer's double to right plated Sexton and Darren Villani, up next, was safe when third baseman Sean Rooney threw away his grounder to first for one of six Rutherford errors. Rumer scored when Rooney was guilty of his second error on the play when he failed to handle the return throw from first.

Rutherford's collapse in the field continued. Losing pitcher Jack Sullivan (8-2), who had belted a three-run homer in the first, hit Craig Ender with a pitch and gave way to Rich Beggs on the mound. Mike Walker greeted Beggs with a double that drove in Villani.

With runners on the corners, Bender singled for a suicide squeeze. Beggs' hurried pitch to Byrne as he saw Ender breaking for the plate bounced in the dirt and allowed Ender to score easily. The fifth and final run came off an RBI loop single by Chuck McCall.

Ender and Walker combined for four of Princeton's nine hits. Byrne, who came on in the eighth, got the win, his fourth against one loss.

A double by Ender and Jordan's single started Princeton's four-run rally in the second. A double steal that sent Walker home safely, an RBI single by Dave Arendas, who stole second, and an error accounted for the other runs.

Villani walked in the third, stole second and came home on Ender's single for Princeton's other run.

With the win, Post 76 increased its record to 29-8.

Brooklawn, Bender was not convinced the better team had won. "We lost the game ourselves; we gave it to them," he said.

Nonetheless, the Princeton team has dug itself into a deep hole. It must win three more games to avoid elimination and advance to the championship game.

Both Score in First Inning. Both Brooklawn and Post 76 scored runs in the first inning. The first two Brooklawn batters got on when Rumer's first nine pitches were balls and the lead runner advanced on a fly ball and came home on a fielder's choice.

Princeton got it right back on a leadoff double by Arendas — his first of a pair of two-baggers — a sacrifice by Dan Sexton, and Rumer's groundout. Unfortunately, what Bender had hoped to avoid, an early Brooklawn lead, became a reality in the third.

The state champions, winners of 28 of 31 contest this year, combined a walk, a passed ball, two hits and a double steal for two runs.

Brooklawn widened its lead to 8-1 with five more runs in the fifth, combining four hits, including a triple and double, and two more Post 76 errors.

Post 76 (28-8) could have rolled over, but didn't. "We came back against a good team, we didn't quit," commented Bender.

In the eighth, after Chuck McCall had walked, Arendas doubled him home, and Sexton followed with another double to plate Arendas, sending Brooklawn starter Marc Favieri to the dugout. Jeff Robinson, who had replaced Rumer on the mound in the seventh, greeted Favieri's successor with a run-scoring single for Princeton's fourth run.

In the ninth, Post 76 loaded the bases on walks with two outs, and had the tying run at the plate in the person of hard-hitting Darren Villani who had three hits in his previous three at bats. This time there were to be no last out heroics; Villani grounded out to third for the final out.

Rumer was charged with the loss, his second in ten decisions. Arendas and Villani each had three hits for Post 76, while Sexton had two. Robinson pitched two perfect innings in relief of Rumer, and contributed an RBI single.

Clifton Outslugged. The previous night, Post 76 ripped 14 hits and scored in every inning but three, as it pounded Clifton, 11-5. All of Clifton's five runs in Rally Nips Irvington. To reach the Final Eight, Post 76 last week had to get by a scrappy Irvington team at the Middlesex Community College diamond in Edison.

Post 76 kept its playoff record unsullied when it parlayed a three-run rally in the seventh for a 4-3 win.

Through the first six innings, the two teams were tied at 1. Post 76 had scored in the first inning off a walk to leadoff batter Arendas who stole second, advanced to third on a Villani that an inning earlier with single and came home on a fa- three more runs. Hits by Aren- vorite Bender tactic: a double steal.

Post 76 scored a pair of runs in the second on hits by Villani, John Blankstein, McCall and a pair of runs for the victors, John Clarkson double. An inn- while Sexton, Villani and ing later, it chased previously unbeaten Clifton pitcher John Luciano (5-0) from the mound with a four-run uprising. In- cluded in the rally were doubles by Sexton, Villani and Ender and a single by Rumer. "Our bats came alive," agreed Bender after the game.

Post 76 starter — and win- ning pitcher — Arendas (6-2) left the mound in the fifth, after yielding just three hits, striking out five and walking none. His replacement, Billy Byrne, was staked to an 8-0 lead when Post 76 scored single runs in the fourth and sixth frames.

Post 76's defense crumbled again in the eighth, however, when it was guilty of four errors. Those miscues, and two Clifton hits, produced three runs and chased Byrne from the mound. The losers added two more unearned runs in the ninth, but Post 76 had offset Irvington tied it in the third on four consecutive hits off Post 76 starter Billy Byrne.

Post 76 won it with a three- run spurt. Villani walked, ad- vanced on Ender's single and scored when an Irvington out- fielder misjudged a fly ball off the bat of Walker and let it bounce out of his glove for an error. John Clarkson followed with a timely double that scored the third and the win- ning runs.

"Billy Byrne did a nice job for us," said Bender. "We need- ed three or four innings from him and he gave us three plus."

Doug Butler Cut by Giants

Doug Butler's dreams of playing in the National Foot- ball League have apparent- ly ended.

The record-setting Princeton University quarterback was one of 10 free agents cut by the New York Giants Monday, as they pared their roster to 69 players. The move came after three days of practice with the Atlanta Falcons in Georgia.

Making the New York Club was a long shot for Butler, but he had hoped to perform well enough to be the team's third-string quarterback when the season began. Another Tiger signalcaller, Bob Hol- ly, had been in that role for the Washington Redskins for a couple of years, before he was dropped.

There is a slim chance that some other NFL team could sign Butler, but the odds are against it. With the demise of the USFL, there are several other quar- terbacks looking for work.

Jay Jordan came on for Byrne in the fourth with runners on first and third and no outs and struck out the side.

Walker relieved Jordan in the seventh when Irvington plated two runs and pitched the last two and two-thirds innings.

Gray Nips Orange, 7-6 For Summer Lax Crown
Gray nipped Orange, 7-6, last week to win the championship game in the playoffs of the Princeton Men's Summer Lacrosse League.
Gray, which finished second in the regular season standings, got three goals from Pat Lackey and two each from Bobby Campbell and Pat Tully. Orange, which surprised regular season champs Maroon in the playoffs, received two goals from Jim Jones and one each from Mike Shannon, Tom Foster, Bryce Thompson and Jeremy Stein.

In one semi-final contest, Gray defeated Green, led by three Lackey goals and two by Tully. Ian Smith scored twice for Green which led, 2-1, after the first period.
Orange upset Maroon, 7-6, with an overtime goal, after the two teams had battled to a 6-6 tie.
Maroon jumped to a 4-0 first-period lead over Orange on a pair of goals by Lawrence Shannon and one each by Jim DeLang and Peter Versfeld. Orange cut the lead to 4-2 at halftime. DeLang scored for Maroon and Mike Shannon for Orange in the third period as the teams began the final period with Maroon up, 5-3.
After Lawrence Shannon gave Maroon a 6-3 lead, Mike Shannon, Foster and Jones scored the game's last three goals for Orange to force an overtime.

Earlier in the completion of a rain-delayed quarter-final battle between Orange and Red with Orange leading, 8-7, Stein and Foster each scored to give Orange a final 10-7 victory. Foster, the former Princeton Day School standout now playing for Johns Hopkins University, claimed four of the victors' goals.

Yellow, Green Post Win In Summer Lacrosse
Only two games were played in the Princeton Women's Summer Lacrosse League last week, as vacations reduced player rosters below the minimum limit. Blue defeated Yellow, 9-7, and Green topped winless Red, 6-1.
The league finals are scheduled for Thursday evening at the Valley Road field.
Blue led Yellow, 6-4, at halftime and was able to maintain its two-goal advantage throughout the second half. Cassie Vogt led Blue with three lone goal. Goalie Candice Killmer had three saves in the first half for Red, while Kassie Sheldon, who took over in the second half, had one save.

Ficarro's Still on Top In Women's Softball
With an 8-1 defeat of Byrne Builders last week, Steve Ficarro's Auto Body women's softball team maintained its first place position in the Mercer County Women's A League with a 22-4 record. It is a half-game ahead of second-place 3 Seasons, which has finished its regular season schedule.
Ficarro's was scheduled to play its final regular-season game this week against third-place Grove Plumbing.

After yielding a first-inning run to Byrne, Ficarro's responded with three runs in the bottom of the inning on a Debbie Smyth double, singles by Clare Baxter, Dot Krimpf and Doreen Ragazzo and a sacrifice fly. A two-run homer by Cindy Lombardo increased the lead to 5-1 after four innings.
The victors added their final three runs in the sixth. Donna Nicholson and pinch-hitter Andra Loretangeli singled, Ragazzo walked and Dee Vertucci drove in all three with a double.
Baxter allowed just five hits in picking up the win. She was the beneficiary of some fine defensive play by Janet Swick at short and Dee Discavage at first base.

sphere. By 1980 he was "itching for more study."

He applied to Drew University Graduate School to take a Ph.D. in philosophy but deferred his acceptance for a term because of the upheaval taking place in Jamaica at the time. "It was not wise for the shepherd to leave the flock at that time," Dr. McFarlane says in his slightly lilting Jamaican accent.

The downfall of Michael Manley was accompanied by a type of violence that Jamaica had never seen before, he says, violence he believes was backed by the United States, because it was American-made rifles that were used by what he describes as "political thugs."

"Manley was a great orator who was over-exposed in the media, but he was not a violent person. Edward Seaga (the current prime minister) is known for his violent ways." Dr. McFarlane draws parallels between Manley and Salvador Allende, the Marxist Chilean president who was overthrown in 1973 with U.S. backing, and between Seaga and Pinochet, the dictator who currently rules Chile.

Path to Princeton. By coincidence, Dr. McFarlane's predecessor at Witherspoon Presbyterian was also a Jamaican, the Rev. Gilbert McKenzie, who was studying at Princeton Theological Seminary when asked to be interim minister three years ago. Presbyterian rules stipulate that an interim may not become permanent, and Mr. McKenzie, who was well-liked by the congregation, has returned to Jamaica.

He invited Dr. McFarlane, among others, to preach during his absence in the summer of 1984. Dr. McFarlane says he had no interest in pastoring a church, although he did take some satisfaction from enabling a small congregation of 25 people in New York City to grow to 90 in 2½ years of a part-time ministry while he was a graduate student. But he received a letter from an elder of Witherspoon Church aptly summarizing his sermon and saying that he had articulated "just what the church needs."

Asked to become a candidate for the pulpit, Dr. McFarlane at first declined. "Have you prayed about it?" he was asked. The church prevailed, and he accepted.

"The thing that drew me," Dr. McFarlane says, "is that they (the church members) really want to grow. Not just numerically, but in terms of self-awareness. Not to be conformed to the changes taking place in Princeton, but to be themselves transforming."

He cites the lack of affordable housing (Witherspoon Church played a key role in the late 1950's in bringing about the first integrated housing in the community and in enabling blacks to purchase homes in white neighborhoods) as one of the issues in the community in need of transforming. Accompanied by several members of the church, Dr. McFarlane spoke at the recent Planning Board hearing on the Borough's affordable housing plan, urging the board not to delay the designation of several small parcels in the Witherspoon-John Street area on which the units will be built.

Cleaner Community. He would like to see a cleaner community. "This neighborhood is so small, there is no reason why a person who loses a pin should not be able to find it," he remarks. Unlike some who, he says, think the municipal government "owes them something," he believes "We are the government, we have elected them our representatives, and it is up to us to work in concert with, for instance, the police. To make sure, on the one hand, that we are not harboring criminals in our midst, but also to see that there are programs of rehabilitation and prevention.

"If the church is not involved in these things, I think the church needs to be chastized," he states.

"I would like to see more of an entrepreneurial spirit in this community, not that I would want to remove the whites who have businesses here, but to encourage blacks. It almost seems as if people are transients and don't want to put down roots."

Dr. McFarlane's personal philosophy is that "You are as poor and inadequate as you think yourself to be, or as wealthy and adequate." Coming from a country in which he was not of the minority, but the majority, he roots out self-pity whenever he finds it creeping into his thinking.

"We have resources — the people — to make this a model community. To keep it open for others to come in and share," he asserts.

Growth in Church. Sparked by his preaching, which is widely admired for being concrete as well as theological and philosophical, and a leadership style which directs and delegates with humor and without ever forcing, Witherspoon Presbyterian Church has added 50 members since he came in March, 1985. It now numbers 180 members, or about 70 families. "I'm not fascinated with large churches. I'd like to see us grow to 350, but if more, say 1,000, I'd rather be in a lecture hall."

Twenty percent of the members are over 65, longstanding and loyal, but there has been an influx of young families and enough teenagers to have a youth group of 18 members. For many years there were no baptisms at Witherspoon, but that too has changed.

Young adult couples and singles from Princeton Junction, Plainsboro, Lawrenceville, Ewing and even Hillsboro have organized fellowship and recreational activities ranging from bowling to horseback riding and skiing.

"I love winter," says Dr. McFarlane, whose lean trim figure indicates athletic inclinations. "I'm going to learn to skate next." He came knowing that the church had not had steady fulltime pastoral leadership in many years, and saw his first responsibility to "be present and to give clarification" where it was needed.

He has spent much of his first 18 months assisting in the re-organization and re-interpretation of church structure, taking committees on retreats and helping to re-write the regulations governing the church. "My style is to first deal with Jerusalem, then Samaria and then the other parts of the world," he says, again using a Biblical reference to make his point.

'Multi-cultural Context.' Witherspoon Presbyterian is also the only church in Princeton which has been truly integrated for a period of time. Founded nearly 150 years ago by blacks dissatisfied with second class treatment at First (now Nassau) Presbyterian Church, it nonetheless was the church which a number of white families joined in the 1950's and '60's. For nearly a decade in that period, Witherspoon had a black minister, the Rev. Benjamin Anderson, and a white assistant minister, the Rev. David McAlpin Jr., who continues to be active in the church.

Dr. McFarlane says that part of the charge to him by the congregation was "to nurture and develop a multi-cultural context for worship." Having come from Jamaica, which harbors peoples from all over the world, he feels particularly comfortable with this aspect of his ministry. Witherspoon presently has about five white families, and the black congregation is a mix of Haitians, Asians, Africans, Jamaicans and Americans.

Dr. McFarlane promised the leaders of the church that he would devote his first two years to focusing on the needs of the church. But as that relationship is strengthened and steadied, the larger Princeton community can expect to hear more from this exceptional man and articulate church leader.
